

Contract awarded for traffic controller

By DON GREEN
Staff Writer

The Upland City Council Monday night authorized spending $12,440 to shore up one of the weakest links in Upland's computerized traffic control system for Mountain Avenue.

Paul Gardner Corp. of Ontario was awarded the contract to modify the traffic signal controller at the intersection of Mountain Avenue and Seventh Street.

City Engineer Fred Blanchard told the council the Ontario firm will be working under a "tight timetable" because of the critical nature of the intersection and the need to get the intersection modified generally in time for completion of Mountaingreen Center.

Blanchard said city staff would "carefully analyze" the firm's materials list to ensure that suppliers for Paul Gardner Corp. could deliver in time to meet contract specifications.

Work on the signal controller is expected to be finished by mid-December.

Blanchard said the signal at Seventh and Mountain was the first installed by the city of Upland, adding several other signals on state highways in the city preceded it. "This is something that's become obsolete," Blanchard said.

Blanchard said he could not recall the year the signal was installed, but noted the traffic "was nothing identical to what it is now."

"We put a signal controller in there that was basically meant to handle a simple intersection."

He said increased traffic on Mountain Avenue and from the San Bernardino Freeway, the development of Montclair Plaza and the coming of Mountaingreen Center have contributed to the need to modify the controller.

Blanchard said the timing of the controller is "old-fashioned" and difficult to coordinate with the city's computer that controls Mountain Avenue traffic.

"We lost efficiency on every cycle," he commented. The signal is also geared primarily to allow pedestrian crossing, further throwing off vehicle traffic, he said.

He called failure to replace signal equipment at Mountain and Seventh during extensive Mountain Avenue improvements completed last year "something of an oversight."

However, Blanchard said that oversight has not added much to the cost of equipment replacement.

Paul Gardner Corp. was the low bidder on the project, submitting a figure more than $5,000 below a bid by Signal Maintenance Inc. of Anaheim.

Illuminated optimum-speed signs along Mountain north of Seventh suggest speeds drivers can travel to reduce their number of red lights.

The city has also been working on one other bug in the system, faulty signal telemetry at the intersection of Mountain and 11th Street.

In other action Monday, the council continued until Oct. 2 a public hearing on an appeal of a planning commission denial for a proposed three-story office building at the southeast corner of Euclid Avenue and D Street.

The applicants are negotiating for property to be used as parking space. Planning commissioners cited inadequate parking in denying the request for a conditional-use permit July 27.

Front runner

Uplander compiles records in race

More and more Americans are running their way to better health, and Harold Daughters of Upland is somewhere near the front of the pack.

Daughters, 57, was named the outstanding athlete in distance running for his age group by the Southern California Striders in 1977.

And he may be quickening his pace this year.

In 21 races during 1978, Daughters has finished first 10 times, usually in age brackets including runners 50 years and older.

He set personal records while winning the 10,000- and 5,000-meter runs last month in the Pan American Games for older athletes at Santa Ana College.

Daughters also finished second in the 400 meters and third in both the 800- and 1,500-meter events in the two days of competition.

But health, not speed, was foremost in his mind when Daughters began jogging nine years ago.

Dr. Charles Davenport, physician at Kaiser Steel Corp. in Fontana, found Daughters overweight with high blood pressure and cholesterol count during an annual physical.

Daughters, division metallurgist for tubular products at Kaiser, comes from a family plagued by early deaths related to the conditions, Davenport pointed out.

So Daughters started running on his doctor's advice.

Daughters said distance running was not new to him. As a youth, he ran the mile and two-mile for Wheaton College in Illinois.

However, he noted his layoff from competitive running spanned 29 years.

Daughters began jogging three or four times a week at Magnolia and Sierra Vista elementary schools in Upland. Five years later, he started training at the Upland High School track with Alan Carlisle, a friend from Kaiser who is a resident of San Antonio Heights.

When he first entered the Senior Olympics and other races sponsored by the Southern Pacific Association of the Amateur Athletic Union (SPAAU), Daughters said he often finished last in his age bracket.

However, he said, he enjoyed the competition, which gave him added incentive to keep running.

Daughters maintains meticulous records of daily workouts and competitive runs on three-by-five index cards. A scattering of red dots for personal records shows his improvement.

He said he runs in Upland before work much of the year and during winter at Kaiser, where the plant has a quarter-mile track of crushed slag.

Daughters entered his first marathon this January in Orange and recorded the fastest time — three hours, 18 minutes — for runners aged 55-59 years.

The time qualified him to enter the prestigious Boston Marathon, and Daughters said he hopes to run that 26-mile, 385-yard course in 1980.

Running has already taken him to Mexico City for the 1976 Pan American Games for older athletes.

He finished fourth for his age group there, but noted training at a summer cabin at Lake Arrowhead has helped him combat fatigue for high-altitude running since then.

Daughters competes in dual meets for the Southern California Striders and prepares carefully for races in the SPAAU Masters' program and other events year round.

He said he will gradually build to 60 miles a week training for the National AAU Masters' Marathon Championship in Orange this November.

His wife, Dorothy, competed in her first race this summer, and Daughters said he hopes to persuade her to run in future events.

Daughters noted he will ultimately lose a race against age, which keeps older runners' times from improving after five or six years of hard training.

Publishing course

A new program in the essentials of the nature of book publishing has been scheduled by the Office of Continuing Education at Cal Poly University, Pomona.

Special topics in mass communications: seminar in book publishing (ENG 499X) will begin Tuesday evening, Oct. 3. Instructor Dr. Walter Brasch will present an overview of the history of book publishing.

Firm abandons plans to construct six-story complex in Upland

Vanguard Companies has abandoned plans to build a six-story, multimillion-dollar shopping and office complex near one of Upland's busiest intersections.

In a letter to City Manager Lee Travers, Richard Scott, president of the development firm, cited the financial burden of possible studies and delays and the project's uncertain fate before the city council as reasons for the move.

The most prominent feature of the proposal, Vanguard's third in a year, for seven acres near the southeast corner of Mountain Avenue and Foothill Boulevard was the 112-foot building, which would have been about twice the height of any current structure.

Council members raised concerns about Upland's ability to provide fire protection for the complex and the impact the center would have on traffic for Mountain Avenue and Foothill Boulevard, two of the city's busiest streets.

A traffic study of the streets prompted by the proposal has been temporarily postponed by the engineering department.

On Sept. 5, the city council authorized spending $8,500 for a consulting firm to study Upland fire defenses, including an examination of when the city should buy an aerial platform truck to fight fires in high-rise buildings.

The city is going ahead with the fire-defenses study.

In his letter dated Sept. 8, Scott said, "I have, in the past expressed concern over the acceptability of the project by various council members, and it seems to me that the chances of this project being approved without expenditures of substantial additional sums on the part of Vanguard Builders for studies, etc., as well as for our monthly carrying costs, are very remote."

Scott indicated the firm would propose a more conventional center — one with perhaps a department store or supermarket surrounded by smaller shops and offices — as a replacement.

Vanguard executives were out of town for a management meeting this weekend and could not be reached for further comments.

Mayor Pro Tem John McCarthy said Vanguard's withdrawal of the project plans surprised him and he called the move a "little premature."

"I don't think they should have anticipated this would slide right through without some concerns," he commented.

Although studies were ordered, he added, the delays would not have been lengthy. McCarthy noted the review of fire defenses is expected to take two months, but results might be available earlier.

Vanguard hired its own consulting firms to analyze the impact of the project on fire protection and traffic.

A representative of Gage, Babcock and Associates told the council the six-story building would not raise Upland fire insurance premiums because the city already needs an aerial platform truck.

Fire Chief Don Justis agreed that the city has needed an aerial platform truck for buildings higher than 28 feet for years.

A truck equipped to respond to fires at the proposed center might have needed double the reach otherwise required.

Vanguard's traffic consultant from Mohl, Perry and Associates of Fullerton told the council double left-turn pockets for Foothill Boulevard would greatly reduce the impact of traffic generated by the center.

However, the council, following Bill Bottin's suggestion, ordered a comprehensive study of traffic along Foothill and Mountain, taking into account future developments besides the six-story complex.

Vanguard's consulting firm was asked to help provide information, but the city was conducting the study. No other studies had been ordered by Upland for the project.

The design of the complex by Barmakian, Wolff, Harris and Associates of Upland generally drew praise from council members and residents.

Others questioned, however, whether a six-story building was appropriate for Upland.

The council might have been heading toward a possible split vote on the center. Mayor George Gibson and Councilman Frank Hoover indicated they were overall impressed by the project.

McCarthy, Bottin and Councilwoman Ina Petokas expressed most of the concerns. However, no one on the council objected to further study.

Residents of nearby Golden Rain Street gave mixed comments on the proposal. They were nearly unanimous in their opposition to a previous Vanguard proposal — a two-story building with eight smaller buildings for shopping and offices — dropped in April.

Hoover, a plumbing contractor, said he understood Vanguard's move, commenting, "Once you get delays, it is costly."

Keeping fit

Harold Daughters of Upland, an ardent runner, stops momentarily by a sign marking the start of a quarter-mile track at Kaiser Steel Corp. in Fontana. Daughters, division metallurgist for tubular products at Kaiser, was named the outstanding athlete in distance running for his age group by the Southern California Striders in 1977. He recently took five medals in the Pan American Games for older athletes and has qualified to run in the Boston Marathon. Daughters, 57, began jogging nine years ago on his doctor's advice. (Staff photo by Dan Carroll)

Ontario center Service club seeks New director appointed new memberships

Leslie Summerfield, a veteran of San Bernardino County manpower programs, has been appointed director of the Ontario-based West End Multi-Service Center.

He replaced director David Juarez who resigned after a city investigation into employee charges of incompetence and misconduct.

No official report has been issued on the results of the inquiry and Ontario officials have refused to comment on the issue which they said was a personnel matter subject to grievance procedures.

Summerfield assumed his new duties Thursday relieving Ontario Administrative Assistant Arlene Berman who was in charge of the center while Juarez was on an administrative leave which some were calling a suspension.

The new director said he began working with San Bernardino County in 1971 under the Emergency Employment Act, the forerunner of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA). He said he was instrumental in developing the county's Inland Manpower Association which was reorganized in June 1977. Summerfield left the county position two months later.

The Cucamonga Service Club is actively seeking members to participate in club activities the coming year.

The club, established in 1925, has worked vigorously throughout the years in several community areas.

Several local organizations have also received the help and cooperation of the Cucamonga Service Club. Among those are:

Association, San Bernardino Burn Association, Olympian Drum and Bugle Corps, Social Science Service Center, Blue Birds, Camp Fire Girls, Girl Scouts of America, Alta Loma High School Singers, West End Boys' Club and the U.S. Forest Service.

Security Pacific Bank is giving away something we sincerely hope you'll never need... a highway emergency kit.

Just let us help you finance a new or used car, truck or RV.

We hope you'll never need the flashing yellow light that plugs into your cigarette lighter. Or the flares or first aid kit. Or the fire extinguisher, tire inflator, orange safety vest, or distress flag.

The flashlight and red shade might come in handy, if you stop to help someone who didn't get a new vehicle when they needed it.

Of course, anyone could run out of gas and need the siphon included in the kit.

Clearly, if you aren't thinking of a new or used car, truck or recreational vehicle, a free emergency kit won't convince you to let us give you a loan for one. But if you're thinking about it anyway, perhaps the free kit and a special rate reduction for having a Master Charge or Visa card with us, and another reduction on your rate for using our Automatic Transfer Service to repay the loan will sway you in our direction.

We'll give you the free highway emergency kit if you lease a new car from us, too.

This offer ends on October 31, 1978.

So don't think about it too long.

We'll try to make getting your new vehicle so easy you hardly have to think about it.

Housing repair

Two county programs available for needy

Senior citizens and most low- and moderate-income families may be eligible for one of the two housing repair programs offered through the San Bernardino County Office of Community Development.

The repair service program provides for payment of housing repair costs for low-income persons 60 or older or disabled and handicapped persons.

To qualify, a person must be a resident homeowner for at least a year and have a total annual family income of no more than $9,100 for a one-person household, $10,350 for a two-person household, $11,650 for a three-person household and $12,950 for a four-person household.

One-time grants can be made in the form of labor and materials for minor home repairs and for weatherization and insulation.

Minor repairs include plumbing, painting, plaster patching, replacement of windows, fixing stairs or railings and other jobs which do not require a building permit.

Low-interest loans, some as low as 3 percent, are also available to low- and moderate-income families for home repairs.

Up to $15,000 may be loaned. The term of repayment may be as long as 15 years. Loans are available to persons whose annual income ranges from $9,100 in a one-person household to $16,200 in households of eight or more.

Applications for aid may be obtained through the county Office of Community Development, 1111 E. Mill St., San Bernardino 92415. They are also available at other county offices and senior citizens' centers.

Applications are processed on a first-come, first-served basis.

Health tests slated for senior citizens

A new schedule of health screening for West End residents over 50 years of age has been established, according to Marie Sharp, health educator for the West Valley Health Department.

The screening tests, she said, include checks on blood pressure, weight, hemoglobin tests for anemia, urine dip stick for diabetes or kidney disease, P. P. D. skin testing for T. B. for those who have never had a positive test, and most important, according to Sharp, a public health nurse to provide health counseling concerning diet, medication, exercise and sleep, emotional problems, or whatever else is of concern to the individual.

The screening clinics will be offered at different centers in the West End to make them available to as many senior citizens as possible. They will be conducted at the following places:

Cucamonga Neighborhood Service Center, 10135 24th St., Rancho Cucamonga; first Tuesday of every month, 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. The October clinic will be held Oct. 3.

Your Good Health & Chiropractic

Dear Doctor:

Recently I suffered an accident which has caused me to have a "needles & pins" feeling in my back and legs, which is getting worse. The insurance company sent me to an orthopedic surgeon who gave me injections in the back. After a total of 10 shots, which only gave me a little relief, he sent me to a neurosurgeon. This doctor said my problem was a muscle, not the sciatic nerve, and sent me back to the first doctor. He then sent me to a third doctor, who wants to operate. Frankly, I'm getting sick and tired of bouncing from one doctor to another with no relief yet in sight. Do you think Chiropractic could help me? Mrs. F.G.

Although you don't describe the type of accident in which you were involved, I would advise that you have a Chiropractic spinal examination immediately. Of course, it is impossible to tell just from your letter what the problem is and whether or not Chiropractic can help you, but it could well be the sciatic nerve which is giving you trouble.

Since it is the largest and longest nerve in the human body, it is the most susceptible to irritation or injury which can cause a number of problems in the low back, legs, feet, etc. Surgery is a very drastic and final approach to a back problem, and it is best to attempt more conservative treatment before submitting to an operation. Chiropractic has proven to be one of the most effective methods of treating disorders of the spine, nerves and muscles. In those rare cases where a Doctor of Chiropractic feels that surgery might offer the only hope for a patient, he will not hesitate to say so. Spinal surgery may produce dramatic results in some patients while achieving nothing in others and making still others even worse off than before, so should be approached as a "last resort" rather than "let's try it and see if it helps."

Campaign news, notes

Campaign head

State Assembly candidate Sandy Baldonado has named former Mayor Mike Morales to head her campaign in La Verne.

Honorary co-chairpersons for the campaign are former Congressman Jerry Voorhis and Leisa Bronson, active in valley politics for 50 years.

Democrat Baldonado is running for the 62nd state Assembly District.

Chairman named

Former Congressman H. Jerry Voorhis has been named to serve as honorary chairman for state Senator Ruben Ayala's bid for reelection to the 32nd state Senate District.

Ayala, D-32nd District, is seeking a second four-year term in the Nov. 7 general election.

Campaign support

Gun Owners of America and Gun Owners of California campaign committees supported two candidates who won their party's nomination at the June primary election.

In the 33rd Congressional District race, the gun owners group supported Wayne Grisham, who won the Republican nomination for the seat being vacated by the retiring Del Clawson.

The 33rd District includes Diamond Bar, Rowland Heights and part of Walnut.

The gun lobby group also supported David Dreier, who won the Republican nomination to the 35th Congressional District seat, which represents residents from West Covina to Etiwanda. Dreier will oppose incumbent Democrat Jim Lloyd in the November election.

The gun owners group contributed a total of $22,500 to campaigns of 12 Republican congressional hopefuls. The gun lobby group did not support any local candidates for state Senate or Assembly.

No on 6

The No on Proposition 6 Committee has opened Southern California campaign headquarters at 5106 Wilshire Blvd., Los Angeles.

Southern California campaign manager Michael Levett is being assisted by political consultants David Mixer and Peter Scott.

The media and grassroots operation has been set up through the efforts of Concerned Voters of California, a coalition of 40 organizations committed to defeating the initiative.

For information call No on Prop. 6 headquarters, (213) 930-2520.

Elected

Assemblyman Bill Lancaster (R-62) has been elected vice chairman of the Assembly Rules Committee.

Lancaster was first elected to the Assembly in 1972 and has served on the Rules Committee since 1976. The committee oversees the organization and administration of the Assembly and adopts the rules under which the Assembly operates.

The committee also acts as policy committee for Assembly resolutions.

The seven-member Rules Committee is the only committee to which members are elected rather than being appointed by the speaker of the Assembly.

Lancaster is ranking Republican member of the committee which includes four Democrats and three Republicans. He represents

San Dimas and La Verne and faces Democratic challenger Sandy Baldonado during the November election.

Committee

Five labor leaders have joined the Los Angeles County steering committee of Labor for Younger.

Los Angeles County labor leaders backing Younger for governor include Everett Schell, executive director of Plumbing and Pipefitting District Council 16; Clyde Dodson, branch agent of the Marine Engineers Beneficial Association; and Joe Goren, business agent of the Marine Cooks and Stewards Association.

Others are William P. McClain, secretary-treasurer of Laborer's International Union Local 182; and Alan D. Bryan, president of Bakers Union Local 37.

Helping kick off a voter registration drive at a McDonald's restaurant is Secretary of State March Fong Eu, right, and an employee of the company. More than 200 McDonald's in Los Angeles and Orange County will be participating in the drive with registration forms and mailing boxes on the counter.

D.C. is biased

By S.I. Hayakawa

The District of Columbia has no automobile factories like Detroit, no cornfields like Iowa, no dairy farms like Wisconsin, no shipping like New Orleans, no clothing industry like New York, no movie studios or wineries or orchards like California.

It has only industries that service the federal government — hotels, restaurants, theaters, also media people, 20,000 lawyers, and I don't know how many lobbyists.

Every one of the 50 states produces wealth; the District of Columbia produces none. It only spends the taxes paid into the district by the 50 states.

Congress has just passed a constitutional amendment to provide full voter representation to the district, which means D.C. will have two senators and one or two representatives of its own. Over the next seven years — that's the time period set by the amendment — supporters will be carrying to the states emotional appeals for its ratification.

"Let's give civil rights to Washington," they will say. The states should be wary of that argument.

By using "civil rights" as a slogan, the supporters of the amendment are implying that opposing voting rights for D.C. is an exhibition of prejudice against a city with a large black majority. In short they are making a racial issue of that which is not a racial issue at all.

Washington has voting rights in every important sense, including voting for president and vice president (with three votes in the electoral college) and electing its own city government of mayor and city council.

Our nation's founders foresaw the conflicts of interest that would arise if the seat of federal government was itself a state. That is why they set down in the Constitution the provision for a separate entity — a district — that, would function without interfering in the primary duty of the city — running the federal government.

Say you owned a grocery store or a restaurant or real estate in Washington — what would you want your senators and representatives to do? It stands to reason that, of course, you would want them to increase every bureaucracy so that more lawyers and more lobbyists would flood Washington. Then you would make bigger profits.

During every period of national emergency, from the Civil War onward, the District of Columbia has enjoyed an enormous increase of power. While the rest of the country staggered under the Depression, the federal government tripled and quadrupled in size — in manpower and money. In order to fight World War II, it was necessary to concentrate even more tremendous strength in the federal government.

You can go right on down the line — the Korean War, the Vietnam War, the War on Poverty — every "war" of any kind has meant more power in Washington (including that "moral equivalent of war," the energy crisis, which has meant creation of a new Department of Energy with a $10 billion budget).

In short, the more disaster the country is in, the better off Washington is — and therefore the founders were right in foreseeing a built-in conflict of interest. That is why they excluded the federal city from the rights of statehood.

I am shocked that the California legislature has been trying to rush through the ratification of the D.C. amendment without hearings, without giving the people a chance to discuss the issue.

(Hayakawa, a Republican, represents California in the U.S. Senate.

TOYS 'R' US WORLD'S BIGGEST TOY SELECTION!

Drawing by St. Slusarczyk from a manuscript compiled by concentration camp inmates and refugees. The book was given to Cliff Hensel, who was in charge of a refugee camp at the end of World War II. His wife, Helen, pulled the manuscript of memories out of storage after seeing the television special on the Holocaust.

33 years later

Concentration camp book reclaimed from storage

Last spring's telecast of the "Holocaust" sent a Cal Poly employee digging through piles of war mementos to find a book her husband had brought home from World War II.

The television special depicted the destruction of millions of Jews by the Nazis.

It reminded Helen Hensel of the days when her husband Cliff came home after serving as a lieutenant in Patton's Third Army.

He returned with memories of concentration camps and refugees — and something touchable — a book.

The book was full of drawings and poetry compiled by Polish refugees found in concentration camps after the German surrender.

Lt. Hensel was placed in charge of a Polish displaced persons camp in Linz, Austria, at war's end.

Hensel, remembering those days, said the hundreds of persons there, many fresh from the brutality of their captors, never spoke of their experiences in the concentration camps.

"They were very quiet and polite and made few demands of any sort," he recalled.

But one day the refugees' leader silently presented the young American lieutenant with a book of poetry and drawings put together by the prisoners.

The book's cover read, "To Lieutenant Sir — Merit of appreciation for helping Poles in 5th Polish Camp — Linz Katzenau — July 5, 1945."

"I was shocked when I first opened the book," Hensel, now of Sierra Madre, said. "I didn't understand why they had given it to me."

But later when Hensel had time to reflect on the presentation, he realized that although the people didn't want to talk openly:

"The book was to speak for them."

"I was horrified by what had gone on," Hensel said. "And many of us had a hard time believing what had taken place."

The world was just beginning to realize what had really happened to those European people singled out by Hitler for extermination.

But when Hensel returned to the United States, he put his war experiences behind him and stored away mementos like the refugees' book.

And there they stayed until Mrs. Hensel saw the television program and retrieved the manuscript.

When Mrs. Hensel brought it to the university to share with her colleagues, she discovered that several of those fellow workers had their own memories of war-torn Europe.

One of them was Dr. Henry Kordus, Cal Poly professor of environmental design, who had been a member of the Polish underground as a teen-ager.

Kordus was instrumental in translating the poetry from Polish into English.

Both he and Mrs. Hensel hope to someday see the book published.

Part of a poem written by Konstanty Cwierk and titled, "Gtod" (Starvation) reads:
If you still remember pale starvation
When a day will come, fruitful in a new life
Let us have unyielding thoughts
That we will never have starving people again!

Another poem, "Do Przyjaciela" (To a Friend) ends with the lines:

We will go with our forehead up high
And with a cross on our chest and the wind on our face
With our own heads we will break the walls,
About which even humans don't dream.

Cal Poly professor remembers war

During the Nazi occupation of Poland, Henry Kordus studied architecture and learned to play the piano — along with fighting soldiers in the streets and helping Jews to escape.

Asked how he was able to develop an interest in the arts and furthering his education in those horrible times, he said:

"With art, there is hope and that's all we had."

Dr. Kordus, now a professor at Cal Poly, Pomona, was a teen-age member of the Polish Underground during World War II and helped in the escapes of many Jews from the eye of the Holocaust.

His six brothers were also in the underground. One brother, Michael, and his wife Irena, received the Israeli Medal of Honor for their efforts.

Another brother, Ireneusz Kordus, was executed for his part in resisting the Germans.

Every member of his family was touched by the German occupation, and Kordus served time himself in two concentration camps near the war's end.

Because he had endured some of those same hardships, Kordus brought an added dimension to his translation of some of the prisoners' poetry in the book unearthed by Helen Hensel.

Kordus sees the advancement of man, not in terms of technology, but in terms of overcoming all types of prejudices. He considers racism a worldwide problem that has plagued mankind almost from its beginnings.

"If we weren't concerned with a person's skin color, then it would be something else, such as their mannerism or accents," he said.

Kordus admits he is not immune to this same type of prejudice. He speaks five languages, one of them German which he won't use because it conjures up bad memories for him.

Ironically, he has many German-speaking friends and travels in that country frequently.

But Kordus accepts his memories and the trauma of the war years as a natural condition which has made him especially sensitive to the United States' own racial problems.

And for this reason he believes the Holocaust should never be forgotten as some others advocate.

Kordus, who immigrated to the United States 20 years ago, said the issue of Holocaust isn't simple.

The time was opportune, he said, which was the only way a despot like Hitler could have come to power. And it could happen again, even in this country, he said.

"But it isn't very likely since the American people probably wouldn't allow all the evil combining forces to grow within this country that would be needed to give power to a man like Hitler."

"But we must be ever watchful," Kordus said, "and remember to look out for our fellow man who's traveling on the same space ship earth as the American people."

Kids need traffic safety

Because thousands of students will be "rollin' back to school" this fall on bicycles, skateboards or mopeds, parents have a greater responsibility for making their children aware of traffic laws and hazards.

Donald Treichler, public safety manager for the Automobile Club of Southern California, said that traffic accidents involving students can be reduced through parental participation in a careful review of safety rules and selection of the safest route to and from school.

"Parents should help their children identify potential hazards and plan ways to avoid them," he continued. "The shortest route may not be the best one. Factors to be considered include blind corners, congested streets and busy intersections."

Treichler said, "Each of the modes of transportation can present its own set of problems. Bicyclists and 'mopedalists,' for example, should understand that their bikes are considered motor vehicles and that they have the same rights and responsibilities as motorists."

Bicycles and mopeds generally are slower moving so keeping to the right side of the road — to the right of traffic — will reduce the possibility of an accident. Drivers are encouraged to use hand signals and be extra careful at intersections.

Treichler reminded parents that mopeds cannot be driven legally unless the operator possesses a California driver's license or an instruction (learner's) permit.

Teens can qualify for a permit at 15½ years if they have completed classroom driver education and behind-the-wheel training courses. Sixteen is the legal age for receiving a license.

Parents of those "rollin' back to school" on skateboards are advised to discuss with their children the need to:

— Wear shoes, gloves, pads and a helmet for extra protection.

— "Safety check" their wheels, trucks and ball bearings.

— Avoid riding in the street.

— Remember that pedestrians have the right-of-way on sidewalks.

A check with the school or local police agency will reveal any special rules or ordinances affecting skateboard usage.

Treichler said parents of teen-agers planning to drive a car should stress the organization of neighborhood "school pools" as a means of cutting gasoline consumption and reducing traffic congestion.

"Tell them to be on the lookout for young pedestrians, skateboarders, bicyclists and mopedalists on their way to and from school," he said. "Passengers should be advised to fasten their safety belts and lock their doors."

Other suggestions include urging drivers to remember:

— It's both unsafe and illegal to double park in front of a school.

— Discharge passengers on the school side of the street away from crosswalks or corners.

— Be especially alert near school bus loading and unloading zones.

Poor resistance causes mite infestation, mange in animals

By Robert L. Stear, D.V.M.
Manager of Veterinary Services
Norden Laboratories

Mange is a form of skin irritation caused by small eight-legged creatures called mites. Two types of mange common in cats and dogs are demodectic mange or "red mange" and sarcoptic mange or scabies.

Pets develop mite infestations when their resistance is low. Poor diet, intestinal worms, even stress caused by rapid growth in young animals, allow mange mites to establish a colony under the skin. A well-nourished pet, free from intestinal worms, can best resist attacks from mites and similar organisms.

Red mange is more difficult to treat because the mites live in the follicles — deep, narrow passages where individual hairs emerge from the skin. As the young mites develop, they absorb nutrient material from the blood and cause individual hairs to drop out. Infected cats and dogs typically show bald spots under the eyes, on the forehead and on the front legs. The skin reddens, and may thicken and wrinkle, thus the name "red mange."

At one time, red mange was almost impossible to control in puppies and kittens. Some infected animals were even destroyed to prevent the mange from spreading through kennels and catteries. Today modern oil-based ointments effectively penetrate the skin follicles to eliminate these mites.

Sarcoptic mange is identified by an itchy, scaly skin condition not seen in red mange. Short red raised lines indicate where the female mites have tunneled under the skin to lay their eggs. Scabs caused by the pet's scratching are also common, hence the term scabies.

Sarcoptic mange also causes hair loss in cats and dogs, sometimes almost to the point of baldness. It spreads more rapidly than demodectic mange, and imparts a characteristic musky odor to the pet's fur.

Treatment for scabies includes repeated applications of a sulphur-containing ointment or other insecticide. Bedding used for a mange-infected animal must be changed regularly until the infection is completely gone.

Strict sanitary procedures are necessary when dealing with this sort of parasitic infection. Mites causing mange can be passed on to humans. Wear gloves or disinfect your hands after you bathe your pet or apply medication. Infected animals should not be permitted close contact with children until treatment is completed. Pregnant females should be examined and treated.

A Woman Ought To Know

Women can succeed at car repair job

"I started my own automobile repair shop, hired only women, and all of us are making more money than we did as waitresses and clericals. The customers trust us and refer us to others. Personally, I feel wonderful physically even when I've worked to the point of exhaustion. The exercise gives me more energy than I ever had in a sit-down job. And seeing the results, making a car run is like solving a puzzle - when you get the answer, hurrah! So why not encourage more women to go into auto repair?"

L.T., Pasadena

We are trying to do just that. Of course, the competition is keen, and some women find that neither their husbands nor their co-workers are altogether happy when a woman takes over "a man's job." Many men workers, on the other hand, enjoy the company of women in their shops and will help you develop your skills.

It's not entirely surprising that women have become interested in auto repair. Many now enroll in courses to learn to reduce costs by maintaining their own automobiles. Girls are being employed as gasoline station attendants and are acquiring further skills by working with experienced mechanics.

Most training authorities recommend a three- or four-year formal apprenticeship program including on-the-job training and classroom instruction in all phases of automobile repair. Courses are offered by many high schools, vocational schools, and private trade schools. Courses in science and mathematics help. Experienced mechanics can advance to shop supervisor or manager.

Today, nearly 1 million persons work in this field, according to the U.S. Department of Labor, and the number should increase in the '80s with the expansion of the driving age population. Steady work is available, and this business is not very vulnerable to changes in the economy. You can expect about $12 per hour or more as a skilled mechanic.

Thanks for telling us about another non-traditional job women don't often consider.

My neighbor lives in dread of beatings by her husband. Please tell me what laws there are to provide protection and where she can go for help for herself and her children. B.R., Los Angeles

Fortunately, wife abuse is being taken far more seriously than it was, and California has improved laws and provided some shelters for victims.

Many counties now provide some form of temporary shelter to women and children. We can provide you a list of those available, or you can write for the "Handbook on Domestic Violence" recently compiled by the Office of the Attorney General, 3580 Wilshire Blvd., Los Angeles, CA 90010.

Certainly it is time that women be provided real protection. For too long wife abuse has been condoned on the premise of English common law that a husband had the right "to correct his wife for her misbehavior."

Researchers have shown that the problem of wife beating is of shocking proportions. In California one of three female homicide victims is murdered by her spouse. One-fourth of all women who are beaten are pregnant. And only two percent of the men who beat their wives are prosecuted.

In California, an attacker can be arrested on a felony charge if he attacked his wife or the women with whom he lives with a deadly weapon, or if she suffers severe injuries. If she is attacked in the presence of police, the man can be charged with a misdemeanor. She should ask for a police report, which is needed to help her press charges. If police do not arrest the man, she can make a citizen's arrest.

Even if the attacker is arrested, he normally is released shortly, so her next step should be to protect herself and her children. Women's shelters provide a haven for her to rest, seek counsel and decide her next move. She can ask for a temporary restraining order, under a new law, to keep her spouse out of the home, even if separation or divorce proceedings are not under way.

Some women begin a new life, once they have safe shelter. In some cases the couple has reconciled after the man accepted counseling and psychiatric treatment. It is no longer necessary for women to remain silent about personal abuse because of fear and embarrassment, as they have in the past.

The California Commission on the Status of Women responds to questions about the changing status of California women. Persons wishing information may write to Betty Stephens, Chair, California Commission on the Status of Women, 926 J St., Room 1506, Sacramento, CA 95814.

praising, financing, taxation, land measurements, business practices and escrow.

Guatemala to be feature of Fine Arts fair exhibit

The colorful land of Guatemala has been selected as the theme for the Fine Arts building of the 1978 Los Angeles County Fair, Pomona.

When the fair opens on Sept. 15, the barn-like building will have been transformed to illustrate the beauty, culture and arts of the Central American country.

The theme selection was made by Rick Petterson, fine arts director, because, "Guatemala is just another step into the past from Mexico."

A Mexican theme was used several years ago. "Traditions are strong in Guatemala," Petterson said. "The people stay close to their heritage and for the most part, wear their native costumes."

Upon entering the Fine Arts building, fair visitors will see a green Guatemalan jungle with a white-topped volcanic mountain in the background. The scene has been painted on the wall and greens placed in front.

In the midst will rest a 7-foot high Mayan stela, a single stone marker such as those found in front of ancient temples.

This particular stela was created by Bob Smith, art instructor at Chaffey College, and is not from the jungles of Guatemala. He used three slabs of Styrofoam glued together then glued on the carvings.

The figure on the stela, Smith said, is of a priest or ruler holding a bar or symbol of power. The carvings represent Smith's studies of three different slides of stela. The surface was painted with cement mortar to give the realistic illusion of a 2-ton stone instead of 50 pounds of plastic material.

"It's supposed to look like it was dredged out of the jungle," Smith said.

Also in the entry will be a village scene with natives in colorful costumes watching a Holy Week procession.

The street will be decorated in designs made from flower petals and dyed sawdust. Petterson said Manuel Montiel will be coming from Guatemala to create the design.

"The tradition is for the processions to walk over the designs, then it is redone the next day," Petterson explained. The art is called alfombras and Petterson said, "It is like Indian sand paintings."

All the figures of the natives and those in the procession have been made by Petterson's crew from wood strips which have movable joints and bodies padded with newspapers. The heads, hands and feet were carved and painted by Petterson from plastic foam.

All the wall paintings are the creations of Charles Allesio of Montclair. The street scene setting was made by Hugh McDowell and the Guatemalan devil figure was done by Rodde Jongh, both of Chaffey College.

Moving into the main part of the building, there will be an art exhibit and demonstrations of watercolors by Robert Uecker of Arcadia. The paintings he will exhibit are all Guatemalan scenes.

There will be pottery, weaving and other demonstrations in keeping with the theme. Examples of Guatemalan pottery and basket work also will be shown.

Petterson has been art director since 1960 when he took over after Millard Sheets resigned. He had started under Sheets in 1948 and was in charge of the handicraft section. Petterson retired four years ago after 30 years on the art staff of Scripps College.

Petterson said that in 1961, themes were selected to use at the Fine Arts building instead of having art exhibits by many artists.

"This came about because the fair wanted to get away from the political competition typical of art shows, and wanted to gear the displays to the interest of the fair-going public," he said.

Every four or five years, an ethnic theme is used, Petterson said. In between varied American themes have been used such as Bicentennial and the Golden West.

"The Fine Arts building has to be suited to people of all degrees of sophistication," Petterson said.

When the Guatemalan exhibit is completed and the fair gates are opened, many fair-goers, no matter how sophisticated, will know more about Guatemala then they did before visiting the Fine Arts building.

Working on the stela (stone marker) he created is Bob Smith, art instructor at Chaffey College. He made the 7-foot replica of a marker such as those found in front of Mayan temples out of plastic foam. A real stela would weigh around 2 tons, but this art effort only weighs 50 pounds. It is part of a Guatemalan jungle setting in the Fine Arts building for the Los Angeles County Fair, Pomona, which runs through Oct. 1.

Guatemala is the theme for the Fine Arts building exhibits at the Los Angeles County Fair and the "natives" of the Central American country are being made and costumed for a village scene. Elyse Kenney, right, attaches a plastic leg to the newspaper body of a "native," while in the background, Kathy Ford costumes one of the many "native" mannequins. The colorful costumes are all authentic, Rick Petterson, art director for the exhibit, said. He made the heads, hands and feet from plastic material.

Stage Review

'You Can't Take It With You' funny, kooky, delight-filled play

By MARGE GROSS
Staff Writer

There's one play in the annals of the American theater, which will live forever as long as it's staged as well as the Actors' Repertory Theater production which opened last Friday at the Claremont Playhouse.

"You Can't Take It With You" by Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman is the play — a gem filled with the most delightful, kooky characters one can imagine.

The setting is the Sycamore's row house in a New York suburb. Money, position, conventions are the least of their worries. Penny the mother writes plays because someone left a typewriter at the house by mistake. Paul the father and Mr. DePenna the boarder make fireworks in the cellar. Daughter Essie futilely practices ballet, and her husband, Ed, earns his living delivering the candy she makes.

Grandpa is the mainstay of the household. He takes each day as it comes, and refuses to pay his income tax because he doesn't believe in it.

Daughter Alice has a job in the city and has fallen in love with the boss' son. She's a bit concerned over how her family will be accepted by the wealthy and snooty Kirbys.

What happens when the Kirbys come to dinner is one of the funniest and most charming sequences ever staged. Naturally, nothing goes right for Alice, but what happens is just a normal night with the Sycamore family.

The entire cast is marvelous. Suzanne R. Fergen as Penny brings out all the wonderful, scatterbrained sides of the woman's character. Mike McCann as Paul and Howard S. Autrey as Mr. DePenna are delightfully funny, and Ed Waterhouse as Grandpa is an old charmer.

It's Merrilee Drake as Essie who really captures the audience's imagination. Miss Drake always gives a good performance, but she excels as the ballet dancer. Her practice session of entrechats is short of hysterical. Rion Garrison as the ballet master, Kolenkhov, is just great.

Alia Selke as Alice is sweet and spunky. This is a straight role in the midst of utter confusion and not easy to play. Miss Selke does well. Howard S. Wilson plays Tony, the boyfriend, and he's good.

The stuffy Mr. and Mrs. Kirby, played by Annette Roon and Jim Gardner, come across with all the aloof snobbery expected of them. As Gay Wellington, the tipsy actress-friend of Penny's, Paula J. Papac is comical.

Also adding to the merriment are Dan Smith, Lynn Cobbs, Mike Delaney, Michael Kelly, Joe Macias, Don Autrey, Dick Palmer — and as the last act capper, Martha Palmer Fuller as the regal Grand Dutchess Olga.

David Roon has handled the direction with finesse and has his actors taking advantage of every line so not one laugh is lost. Timing in the show is sharp. "You Can't Take It With You" is sheer delight from start to finish. The whole family will enjoy this classic. Call 621-5005 for reservations.

Organ recital set

The Claremont Chapter of the American National Red Cross will present Pierre d'Archembeau and Marilyn Mason in a benefit recital on Sept. 24 at 4 p.m. in Bridges Hall of Music, Claremont.

Call 624-0074 for more information. Those making reserved section donations are invited to meet the artists at a reception following the concert.

This Aotearoa Maori dancer looks excited as the National Band of New Zealand plays behind him. The Aotearoa dancing group provides a look at the art and culture of New Zealand's Maori people each night as they perform their exotic dances at the Los Angeles County Fair in Pomona. The fair continues through Oct. 1. The Royal Canadian Mounted Police and the National Band of New Zealand perform nightly also at the free grandstand entertainment program nightly at 8 p.m. and Sundays at 2 and 7:30 p.m.

Oak Glen community opens its apple season

Apple time is here.

Trees in the mountainside community of Oak Glen near Yucaipa are laden with red apples ready for picking.

The season officially opened last weekend. The ranches and gift-souvenir shopping areas which dot the winding road into the mountains were filled with visitors.

There are eight ranches where apples and cider are available along a 10-mile stretch. There's the Johnny Appleseed Ranch, McFarlands Ranch, Parrish Pioneer Ranch, Hi Country Orchards, Law's Oak Glen Cider Mill, Snow-Line Apples and Cider, Los Rios Rancho Apple Orchard and Blackie Wilshire's Ranch.

Don Sudlow of Los Rios Rancho said nine varieties of apples are grown in the glen — McIntosh, Jonathans, Golden Delicious, Standard Delicious, Red Delicious, Standard Rome Beauties, Red Romes, Winesaps and Arkansas Blacks. There also are a few crabapple trees.

Blackie Wilshire, one of the old timers of the glen, also raises Glen Seedlings and Gravensteins. Wilshire said his father came to California in 1874 and his uncles in 1876, and most of them "went on down off the mountain." He claims Wilshire Boulevard in Los Angeles comes from his family name. "I've been here 79 years," Wilshire said.

Visitors who come to Oak

Glen in apple season find the drive takes them above the smog line into clear, crisp fall air.

Not only do they buy apples to take home, but while in the glen, partake of fresh apple pie and fresh apple cider sold in the small restaurants.

The elevation of Oak Glen is 5,000 feet. By the end of September and into October, leaves will be turning to golds and reds. From January to March, the area will be blanketed in snow.

With the warmth of spring sunshine, the apples trees in blossom lure visitors into the area.

The shops and restaurants are open all year, and there's a motel available as well as camping areas.

The apple season runs into December.

'Dracula'

Jeremy Brett will star in the title role of "Dracula," the first production of the 1978-79 season for Center Theatre Group at the Ahmanson Theatre, it was announced by Managing Director Robert Fryer. Playing from Sept. 29 through Nov. 18, "Dracula" is directed by Dennis Rosa, with scenery, costumes, and special effects by Edward Gorey. "Dracula" is currently a Tony Award-winning critical and popular hit on Broadway.

Brett made his first London stage appearance at the Old Vic in "Troilus and Cressida" and has subsequently appeared in numerous productions in the West End, for the Chichester Festival, and with the National Theatre Company of Great Britain. He made his Broadway debut at the Winter Garden Theatre in the Old Vic's production of "Richard II."

Working wife needs help

You work a 9 to 5 job five days a week, then fight the rush hour traffic... only to be met by a bunch of expectant and hungry faces.

"What's for dinner, Mom?"

How long do spices last?

The American Spice Trade Association advises that whole spices, like peppercorns, are extremely durable. There is an account in history where a batch of peppercorns known to be 100 years old was ground up and found to be beautifully flavorful.

The tropical spices, such as pepper, ginger, cinnamon, cloves, allspice, have a special cell structure which protects their flavors when they are still in the whole form. Once a container of ground spice is opened, however, it needs to be checked periodically — at least once a year.

If the scenario sounds familiar, consider this happy ending: a family dinner so simple it can be prepared, start to finish, in about half an hour.

"Do It Yourself Tostadas" make a delicious meal, sure to be a hit with every member of the family when you let each person assemble his own.

Line the plates with tortilla chips, and serve the meat sauce separately — along with a variety of side dishes such as shredded lettuce, shredded yellow cheese, sour cream, chopped green chiles for the stout-hearted, chopped green onions, and whole peeled tomatoes chopped into bite-size pieces.

All of these side dishes add up to an interesting medley of flavors — both hot and cold, spicy and mild, all a wonderful foil for the rich meat sauce and crispy tortilla chips.

You can make this lively meat sauce in just minutes, a welcome thought after a busy work day.

Do It Yourself Tostadas
(Makes 1 quart meat sauce)

1½ pounds ground chuck
¾ cups (28-ounce can) whole peeled tomatoes and juice
Juice plus water to make 2 cups
2/3 cup (6-ounce can) tomato paste
1 tablespoon instant minced onion
¼ teaspoon cumin
1 bag (8½ ounces) tortilla chips

Shredded Jack or Cheddar cheese
Shredded lettuce
Chopped green chiles
Sliced ripe olives
Chopped green onions
Sour Cream

Brown ground chuck in large skillet. Pour off excess fat. Drain tomatoes; reserve juice. Add water to juice to make 2 cups. Chop tomatoes; reserve. Add juice-water mixture, tomato paste, onion, and cumin to meat in skillet; mix well. Boil gently, uncovered, 15-20 minutes.

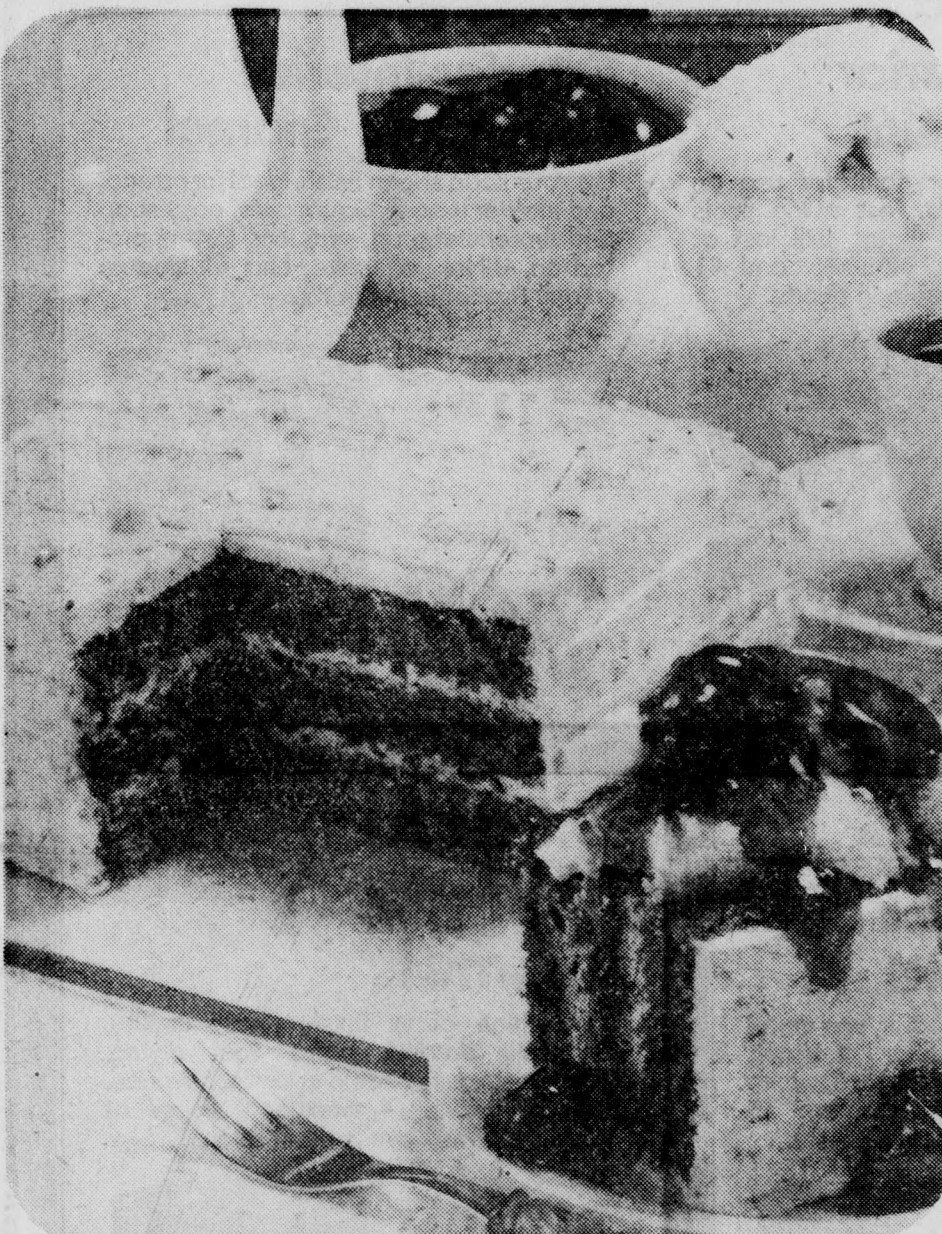

To make tostadas: Place tortilla chips on plate. Top with hot meat sauce, cheese, lettuce, reserved tomatoes, chiles, olives, onions and sour cream.

Toot Toot Tootsie Sauce
(Makes about 3 cups)
2 cups sugar
1 cup light corn syrup
2 tablespoons butter
½ cup semi-sweet chocolate pieces
2/3 cup liquid nonfat Milk
Combine sugar, corn syrup, and butter in medium saucepan. Place over low heat, stirring until sugar melts. Increase heat to medium; cook, stirring constantly, until mixture comes to a full boil. Cook and stir additional 5 minutes. Remove from heat. Cool 5 minutes. Stir in chocolate pieces. Beat with rotary beater until smooth. Add liquid instant milk gradually, beating until blended. Serve warm or chilled over ice cream or cake.

This "Do It Yourself Tostada" meal is delicious and makes a hit with the whole family. But it is easy for the working wife and mother to toss together when she comes home from a busy day at work. She puts it on and everyone assembles their own.

Busy work schedules frequently don't allow time for baking fancy desserts, but even if you can't make them from scratch, you can easily serve them using ready-made cakes from the freezer. This

Black Forest Cherry Treat can be made in minutes using a frozen German chocolate layer cake, ice cream and a thickened, dark cherry sauce.

Scrumptious dessert

Perfect for busy schedules

For many of us, a busy work schedule barely allows time for basic cooking, much less the creation of scrumptious desserts.

Most working women (or men, as the case may be) would agree, they can't muster much enthusiasm for baking special cakes or rich, creamy tortes when they get home from work.

Nutty news

TYRONE, Pa. (UPI) — Peanuts with the flavor of pecans, black walnuts or toasted almonds are new from a manufacturer here. They are not likely to fool anyone who eats them out of hand, because the texture differs from that of the nuts they imitate. But used in baking and confectionery, the texture difference is less apparent. As an ingredient, they cost less than the other nuts.

Somehow dinner manages to get to the table but the dessert course suffers for lack of time.

Well, the fact is, maybe you can't prepare lovely desserts from scratch, but there's no reason why you can't serve them. All sorts of modern day taste treats can be prepared in a matter of minutes using cakes from the freezer. For example, all it takes is about five minutes to turn a german chocolate layer cake into a deliciously different Black Forest Cherry Treat.

The cake is cut into serving size pieces and topped with scoops of vanilla ice cream. A slightly thickened sauce made with dark, sweet cherries and port wine is spooned, while still warm, over the ice cream and cake causing the ice cream to melt slightly and with the cherry sauce, drizzle down the sides of the cake. It's a delightful combination of flavors that looks as good as it tastes.

Black Forest Cherry Treat
¼ cup cornstarch
1 can (17 ounces) pitted dark sweet cherries, undrained
1 cup port wine (or any sweet red wine)
2 teaspoons brandy flavoring

1 package german chocolate layer cake (17 ounces)
1 quart vanilla ice cream
In a saucepan, mix cornstarch, cherries and their juice, port wine and brandy flavoring. Stir over low heat until sauce bubbles and thickens. Cool to room temperature. Cut cake into serving pieces and top with scoops of ice cream. Spoon cherry sauce over ice cream and serve at once.

UNCONDITIONAL MONEY BACK GUARANTEE

You've heard it before, "Unconditional Money Back Guarantee." Usually, however, you find it doesn't REALLY mean "unconditional". You have to return the merchandise by a certain date, prove it's defective, satisfy all kinds of requirements.

When STANDARD BRANDS PAINT AND DECORATING CENTER says, "All merchandise is covered by an unconditional money back guarantee," we mean it.

We don't mean within 30 or 90 days -- we mean ANY TIME.

We don't mean, if you can prove there's something wrong with the product -- we mean if, for ANY REASON whatever, you're not happy, bring it back.

When we say "unconditional", we mean UNCONDITIONAL. And when we say we'll save you 10-50%, we stake our 39 year reputation on it.

Shop around. Then come back to STANDARD BRANDS PAINT AND DECORATING CENTERS. We're proud of our Service, our Quality, and our Prices. Stop by and let us show you why.

Agency pays for training

Employers in the West End have been urged by a State Employment Development Department (EDD) official to take advantage of a federally funded program that pays them for the extraordinary costs of training new employees and at the same time provides jobs for unemployed veterans.

This program, HIRE II (Help through Industry Retraining and Employment), is designed to make available private sector jobs and training opportunities to unemployed veterans and to others eligible for veterans preference.

Glenn Rankin, Manager of EDD's Ontario office said that this CETA On-the-Job Training project may reimburse employers for unusual recruiting and training costs up to 50 percent of the new trainee's starting wage. Length of training depends on the complexity of the occupation.

Rankin said that a substantial number of OJT openings are available. These provide participants the opportunity to learn a job skill or qualify for a specific occupation through demonstration and practice while receiving beginning pay of at least $3.50 per hour.

Applicants for the program must be unemployed and certified for eligibility on or before the date of hire. Call 983-5821 for details.
